COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The Assessors have established the local tax rate for 1974 to be $44.00 per thousand. This will apply to all real estate and some personal properties. Other personal property such as stock in trade, industrial properties, inventories in mill yards, and livestock must be valued at 100% of market value and have the State tax rate, which is $21.75 per thousand, applied.

It is expected that tax bills will be in the mail next week. There is no discount offered this year. Interest at 6% per year will commence Dec. 1, retroactive to Oct. 1, if taxes are not paid by the Dec. 1 date.

If anyone wants the town to tar their driveway they should contact the town office as we are making plans to do our own work. There is still a question of supply of material but we are accepting requests and will do as many as possible.

All indications are we will charge $1.00 per gallon of asphalt which will include the sand, labor, material and equipment to apply the material. We do not prepare the surface nor do we clean the sand off after the project is completed.

NORTH PARIS

Eveline Barrett, Corres.

The July 4 holiday was quiet in our little hamlet but many rumbles overhead and several showers.

Herbert Stevens and John O'Hearon's family have set out close to 2,000 tomato plants during the past week. So on Sunday they took a day off to go to the beach at Sandy Bottom, Turner. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tripp and family, Lewiston, joined them.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kalinowski were pleasantly surprised July 4 by the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilcox and Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Chabell of Portland, Conn., at the Big Rock for the long week end. They went to the Albany Church supper, an auction at Norway, to the Chickadee, and to Auburn, and to the dance. Never a dull moment.

Ellery P. Lawrence and friend, East Stoneham, called on the Ellsworth Lawrences, Sunday. Also calling were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Coffin, Jim and Jeff, Eveline Barrett, Lena Kangas, Elizabeth Stearns, Maureen Millett, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Abbott and Joan, Rumford.

Kirshner's roofing repair crew painted the steel roof on the Robert Johnson house last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Cleaveland, Pennsylvania, and their four children spent the past week with his sister and family at Sebago and his father, Lowell Cleaveland, here.

I visited the Moose Pond Boat facility on July 4. I was glad to see the nice boat ramp and other improvements. The work of the National Guard has been a great help to community improvements. I believe Harlan Abbott had something to do with the project but I haven't seen him.

Sylvia Johnson had another operation on her arm Monday, July 8, at the Maine Medical Center, Portland.

Callers at the Barretts, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Parker, Casper, Wyo., Mr. and Mrs. Roland Cleaveland, Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kalinowski, Doris Lawrence, Lowell Cleaveland, Myron Herrick, Norway, Clayton Sweatt, Bethel, Roger Hadley.

Isn't the weather grand for the gardens. Some are growing, some were washed out and others are so-so.

Work on the bridge will be finished this week or by the middle of next week and the crew will move on and a road crew will take over the finishing part.

I REMEMBER THE GOOD OLD DAYS

From E. E. Messenger, Groveland, Ft. It was my chore, after coming home from school, to look for the family cow and drive her home. One evening, in dismal November weather, as it was late and soon to become dark, my sister went with me, but we got lost in the woods. I soon got dark, and my father came to look for us with a lantern; there wasn't much oil in the lantern, and soon the light went out. The cow was stubborn and wouldn't go home. So we sat down on a fallen log and spent the cold night right there. Fortunately, my father had matches with him and kept a fire going for our comfort all night and also to keep the wolves and bears away.

The next day, the cow had a baby calf, and then she went home willingly. I didn't go to school that day but stayed home and recuperated from my night in the woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Perkins had as overnight guests on Saturday, Miss Olive Dodge, James Dodge and Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Dodge, Phillips.

elt Cross and accompanied them to their farm where the Crosses will spend the summer.

MIDDLEDAM

Jane Costa

Life here at Middle Dam, I suppose, is much as it was 35 years ago when Ralph and Louise Rich were living "We Took to the Woods" at Forest Lodge on the Carry Road.

As soon as the ice went out on Richardson Lake, summer residents began arriving.

Marion Oliver, the pastry cook, at Lakewood Camps arrived May 14. May 15 found Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burton of Connecticut opening their camp for the summer.

Lakewood Camps, first known as Angler's Retreat, has been a lodging place since 1863, 109 years.

John Walsh of Portland is now chef at Lakeview Camps.

Traveling the Carry Road early this spring was quite hazardous due to poor road conditions. The Carry Road Highway Department consisting of Rufus Rich and Jane Costa cleaned out culverts, removed rocks cleaned out culverts, removed rocks, filled ruts and otherwise made the road passable. Finishing touches were made by Ray Chabot who has a camp further down the road.

There was much activity in Middle Dam over the 4th of July week end.

GREENWOOD CITY

Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres.

July 1 gave the promise of a good day. I was out early for mornings like this were few.

Walking down the driveway I noticed a single drop of water at the tip of a branch. It was like a prism for it reflected the color deep blue. As I changed position its color was yellow, then light green. I was reminded of the rainbow; another promise of a good day.

Everywhere now we find the young birds; speckled robins; brownish red-wings, and the squawking flickers.

At eleven o'clock four of us left home for a trip back into the woods. The kinship of trees is one that few people know. Those that have closeness with them deeply love them. The breezes on different days being different voices to the leaves. There is a noticeable difference between the hum of the pine and the flutter of the poplar. Today all the trees were harp with their gentle music.

We left the car near the main highway and followed the old Ames Road which was rough and muddy. By the road side we noticed the Hazel bush with its twin nuts hidden within the prickly husk, not too plentiful now.

We came to a brook where we stopped for our lunch on a ledge in midstream. A bridge to our left covered the spirals of the darkened water as it rushed by us over the rocks jutting up from the bottom of the brook. Its waters fanned out as they skipped along, ever in song where trees from above clasped hands to listen. We remained for a time watching the moving skeins of water twining in and out joining and separating as it passed the rocks; weaving patterns and shadows on around the bend.

We moved on where the oven bird called his teacher song. It was as if he had just been set free in those dim sequestered shades for our delight. Curiosity dominates his activities; he seems to manifest much interest in what is going on. I have always wished that I could see the nest; maybe it will some day come true as did my wish to see the scarlet tanager. I again saw one of these this week in my driveway.

We passed the cellar foundation where once lived the Ames family on the first county road of Greenwood which led over Patch Mountain, through Bear Hollow, which has an interesting story, and on to Bethel.

We continued to the Ames Cemetery where lie eight soldiers. One of the Ames, Willard, served in the Civil War. Stones indicated Wentworth families, early settlers; the site of their homes we visited later.

Then we hiked to the Tiger Bill mine on Joe mountain. At the start we didn't realize the distance. But once on the way, and expecting it around every bend, we kept going. Once Ruth exclaimed in such an exciting voice, "Oh, look." We expected to see a moose or a bear. But there at her feet was a treasure she and I had searched for on every hike and one we hadn't seen in many years before us was the Twin-flower. . . . beneath dim aisles, in odorless beds. The slight Linnæa hang its twin-born heads."

Whoever has seen will not soon forget the exquisite carpeting made by its nodding pink flowers dark shining leaves, or the delicious perfume which actually filled the air. It was to me the "winning reward" of the whole trip although there were so MANY things.

Up and up we went and we DID find the mine. Feldspar was mined here once. New banks rise in sheer cliffs cut away leaving black waters, perfectly smooth and placid.

unruffled by the slightest movement of air.

To the east the mountains were lovely otherwise we were closed in. The flowers, even ladies' slippers, were everywhere.

Our trip back was lovely but we did think it a bit long as we were tired.

At home again I set out my Twin-flower, I treasured, hoping it will live so I'll always be reminded of that, "Oh, look!" the hike, and Richard Jefferies, "Sweetest of all things is wild-flower air."

News from The First

The First Congregational Church held a highly successful Old Home Day last Sunday, including the Annual Homecoming worship service, Home Day Luncheon and the Pastors' reception at the parsonage. Rev. Kingsbury and Rev. Cummings were present for the events and were pleased to have so many old friends and past members of the congregation turn out to greet them during the day. Many thanks to all who worked on the activities, who helped to make it such a fine time.

There will be a guest preacher at the morning worship next Sunday, while the pastor is away participating in the work of the Maine Conference, UCC, summer camping program at Pilgrim Lodge. He will return for services on Sunday, July 21.

Due to lack of response, attendance and use of the facility, the church's Youth Center operation will close down for the season, to reopen when the demand warrants it in the fall.

The church has already begun to seek workers for the fall semester of the church school. Suggestions and offers of assistance should be made to Mrs. Norrie as soon as possible. Materials have been ordered, and will be available to teachers when they arrive. Also, recommendations for fall events and programs will be welcomed, and the pastor will be glad to talk to interested persons with ideas, suggestions or comments. In addition, he will share some of his plans and ideas for fall programming at an upcoming church meeting or morning worship in the future weeks.

Words and expressions of appreciation and support for the Norries efforts and work given in recent weeks have been very gratifying, and they hope to prove worthy of the gracious encouragement of the congregation in the future.
